

Benjamin Shalva

Cemetery, Late Fall

Money
may not grow
on trees, but diving
leaves, flat stabs
of paint upon
the lichen slickered stone, betray
the dash
between the dates,
the only other growth
we know, until
all that we see
is gold.